Responds to student movement

Eckert backs lower drinking age

By Dave Iyata
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Mayor Neal Eckert endorsed Monday a possible 18-year-old drinking age for beer and wine.

Responding to a student movement studying the feasibility of a lower drinking age, Eckert said, "I would support lowering it to 18 because it's the legal age for many other things. Besides, many college freshmen are 18."

An 18-year-old is legally responsible for many of his actions, Eckert said. Citing one example, he continued, "It's perfectly consistent that if an 18-year-old man can make an independent decision to marry, he can make an independent decision to drink beer."

Eckert is also liquor commissioner for Carbondale. As commissioner he sets liquor policies subject to approval by the city council.

The Thompson Point Executive Council established last week an ad hoc committee to investigate a proposed drive to lower the drinking age on campus and in town. By Friday the proposal had won support from Dennis Sullivan, student body president, and Sam Rinella, director of housing business services.

"I'm glad he's for it," Cheryl Coe, president of the Thompson Point Executive Council and head of the committee, said Monday. "Maybe because he's for it, it will make communications between us a lot easier."

Students involved with the committee have expressed hope that the city might lower drinking age through its home rule privileges.

"I don't think Carbondale can do it by home rule," Eckert said. "It presents a problem if one community does it and everyone else has different laws." Eckert said.

To lower the drinking age on campus would require action by the state

Watergate prosecutor to paint picture of illegal conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP)—Asst. Special Prosecutor Richard Ben-Veniste laid out his case against the five Watergate cover-up defendants Monday, declaring he will prove an illegal conspiracy among "the most powerful men in the government of the United States."

He said the plan to cover up the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters more than two years ago "involved the participation of even the President himself."

The 31-year-old dark-haired prosecutor, speaking from a lectern only a few feet from the jury box, said former President Richard M. Nixon was willing to sacrifice a close aide to save himself and closer associates when the cover-up was unraveling.

Quoting from an April 15, 1973, White House tape, Ben-Veniste said Nixon believed that if former White House Counsel John W. Dean were turned over to Watergate prosecutors, they might not try to make a case against presidential aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman or Nixon himself.

On the tape, Nixon said Haldeman and Ehrlichman should "give the investigators an hors d'oeuvres-Dean, maybe they won't come back for the main course," the prosecutor said.

Ben-Veniste said that in mid-April 1973, Nixon, Haldeman and Ehrlichman "considered a strategy of pushing Dean outside the circle of wagons around the White House."

On April 19, Dean issued a statement

SIU ROTC enrollment drops slightly

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU's ROTC program is still grinding out about 30 officers a year for Air Force service.

Col. James R. Fenn, adjunct Professor of Aerospace Studies, said the SIU program has seen only "a minimal drop" in enrollment since the draft ended in 1972 but the "product is still being turned out."

This information comes in light of the army's Friday announcement that its remaining 2,500 draftees will be released, earlier than expected, before Thanksgiving.

Since the draft ended, ROTC enrollment has dropped about 10 per cent, Fenn added. He also said "we are not anticipating any problems right now in meeting our commitment to the Air Force."

The last of the draftees would have otherwise been released June 30, two years after the draft expired. Despite the draft expiration, the armed services are doing well in their volunteer efforts, Fenn said.

The ROTC program at SIU deals only with the Air Force and is concerned with training officers. "We have never had any problem in getting enough officers," Fenn said.

The SIU unit has "always managed to train as many men as the Air Force asked," Fenn said. "The figures (25 to 30 trained officers per year) have remained fairly consistent for the past ten years."

Fenn said ROTC was mandatory for all SIU freshman and sophomores until 1965. ROTC was transformed to a voluntary program when, as Fenn explained, consensus of public opinion applied enough pressure on the military to let colleges decide if ROTC should be mandatory or not.

Fenn said ROTC is funded by the Air Force and the school is reimbursed for salaries paid to any Air Force personnel.

The Air Force pays for students' books and provides a great number of scholarships, Fenn said. In addition, each ROTC student gets $100 a month, tax free, from the federal government.

After a student graduates he spends 12 months in flight training and then is called for active duty. If one is determined to be a pilot the time spent in active service is six years, if flight is not desired, the active time is four years.

Fenn said SIU needs to continue ROTC because "if we didn't have one there would be a lot of money going someplace else. ROTC students would go to Champaign (University of Illinois)."

Communists seek U of I tuition cut

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two Communist party candidates for University of Illinois Board of Trustees made a campaign swing through Carbondale Monday.

Jay Schaffner and Valerie Witzkowski, both Chicagoans, said they are seeking tuition cuts for the University of Illinois because "astronomically high tuition costs are a major deterrent to education."

"Our program calls for an immediate 50 per cent cut in tuition," according to Witzkowski.

Schaffner said tuition now provides U of I with seven per cent of its revenue, and the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) has said that schools receiving state aid, such as U of I and SIU, must have tuition comprise 30 per cent of their revenues after 1976.

The IBHE proposal would raise tuition at U of I from its present level of $810 for two semesters to $2,600. At SIU tuition would be tripled, Schaffner said. The communist party's appearance on the state ballot Nov. 5 will mark the first time the party has been on the ballot since 1932, Schaffner said.

The Illinois Election Code has disallowed any member of the party from appearing on election ballots prior to 1972. That ruling was ruled unconstitutional by a federal district court, he said.

Schaffner also said 25,000 signatures are required to earn a spot on the ballot. His party gathered 35,000. Schaffner explained that the U of I Board of Trustees is the only education office still elected by the public. One member of the board sits on the IBHE as a full, voting member. That board, Schaffner said, "has control over all higher education in the state."

The two candidates also take issue with IBHE plans to establish by 1980 one state center for graduate study at Urbana. The plan calls for a "phasing out" of other graduate programs.

Valerie Witzkowski

Jay Schaffner

Schaffner said such a program would be disastrous to already existing graduate programs and make it necessary for graduate students to commute to Urbana.

SIU study reveals

Foreign students' education inadequate

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Foreign students studying in the United States are not taught how to apply what they have learned in their home countries, according to a study prepared by Frank Sehnert, a graduate student who prepared the study for presentation to a conference at Wingspread, Wis. Tuesday.

Sehnert, Richard Thomas, director of the community development program and Ivo Saric, a student, are the SIU participants in the two-day conference.

Goals of the conference include "the development of guidelines for the planning and implementation of national, regional, or institutional re-entry transition conferences, seminars, or consultations for international students."

A second goal is "the initiation of a coordinated national effort to stimulate, encourage and implement the development of re-entry transition conferences in the United States."

The third goal of the Wingspread conference is to identify specific problems and needs within the transitional experiences of international students which warrant attention.

In his study titled "An Inventory of Transition Programs," Sehnert said for the foreign student, "There is a need for a broader education than the American education. It's important that they see how their American training can help them when they get back home," he said.

He said foreign students are "westernized" at the American schools and "nothing helps them maintain their cultural base."

Sehnert's study also dealt with the problems a foreign student faces when he returns home. He said, "They're moving from a very advanced, affluent society. Most foreign students are frustrated when they go back."

Sehnert said the people in the student's home country say he's contaminated with Western ideas, and the student "may have to prove he hasn't been brainwashed if he gets wrapped up in elitism."

He said a "gamut of problems we're not approaching in the academic experience," exists and preparing an academic program to prepare foreign student for re-entry "doesn't mean we have to revolutionize the system."

The conference, which is sponsored by the Johnson Foundation, will concentrate on setting up a program for the first national conference on transition programming to be held in February.

Sehnert said the program should use an interdisciplinary approach, incorporating the transition training in all curriculums. He said teaching should be "fluid and flexible."

"The excitement can be added to each discipline. All we need to do is get the country conscious to letting them know what education can do," he said.

Following the Wisconsin conference, Sehnert will present a report to the Academic Curriculum Committee of the Faculty Senate. He said he hopes the program will be implemented at SIU, but could not estimate the date of implementation.

He described the idea as innovative. "Nobody else is doing what we've done in this area. It can get SIU in the limelight."

Eckert observed, "You're only talking about a one-year voting group."

Coe and Barbara Tally, student member on the Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board, will study the city's liquor ordinance, Coe said.

"We're working on the part of home rule," Coe said, noting that "it isn't as important as the ordinance covering drinking in the city limits."

Coe continued, "This committee that I set up will get together and plan strategy. I want to take it slow, but I want to get it done."

Students on Thompson Point want a lower drinking age, but are doubtful that the Executive Council can make an impression on City Hall, Coe said. "(Residents) think maybe we should be a larger group," she said.

Southern Illinois may receive a visit from President Ford within a week to 10 days before the November general elections.

SIU graduate dies

Kenneth Garrison, recent SIU graduate in accounting, from Markham, died Thursday of a brain tumor, in Chicago's Cook County Hospital.

Garrison had served as treasurer of Black Affairs Council from summer quarter 1973 to spring quarter 1974 and was a member of Phi Beta Sigma fraternity. He had served as student senator from the Eastside non-dorm district.

Garrison's funeral services are set for Tuesday in Markham.

Health show 'Feeling Good'

NEW YORK (AP)—A new television series on health is already working wonders for its producers. They've gone from merely being alive and well to actually feeling good. However, they didn't plan it that way.

The Children's Television Workshop, producers of a show for adults that debuts Nov. 20, started with the working title of "Alive & Well." But when a legal problem developed over that title, they switched to "Feeling Good." And that's the name that will head the 26 hour-long shows.

Ford may visit Southern Illinois

Illinois on Oshel's behalf. According to Oshel, "The chances are very good."

Oshel was in Washington recently and spoke with President Ford. He said the trip to the White House came about when he received a request from the President because there were things the two of them had to discuss. "And when the President summons you...you go," said the Republican candidate.

Oshel said he and President Ford spoke at great length about some of the problems Southern Illinois is faced with, such as coal to gas conversion. Oshel maintained that establishing a coal conversion facility in Southern Illinois would be his number one goal if elected to Congress. Oshel said the President is very aware of the problems discussed, and that he "lent a very receptive ear."

Ford confronts House with veto of aid cutoff

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his first major confrontation with Congress, President Ford vetoed a measure Monday to cut off U.S. arms aid to Turkey, declaring the ban would dash hopes for a Cyprus peace settlement.

House leaders arranged a vote Tuesday on a move to override the veto. The measure had been enacted by a lopsided vote, but Democratic leaders acknowledged chances of overriding the President's action were slim. A two-thirds vote is necessary to override a veto.

The Turkish aid cutoff amendment was attached to a resolution continuing the funding of such major government operations as foreign aid and health and housing programs, while Congress decides on the agencies' annual appropriations.

The amendment would cut off U.S. aid to Turkey until Ford can certify substantial progress toward a settlement on reduction or withdrawal of Turkish troops from Cyprus.

Beg your pardon

The Daily Egyptian incorrectly reported Saturday that Marc Kamm and the student government gave to the city a false address of a nominee to the citizens steering committee.

Kamm did not state he lived at 507 W. Oak Street on the northwest side, Kamm said Monday.

Kamm's incorrect address may have been derived from erroneous records of the SIU registrar, Donald Monty, city planning division employee, and Dennis Sullivan, student body president, explained Monday.

Student government did supply the city with Richard "Josh" Bragg's incorrect address.

Fischer questions legality

City Council considers licensing signs

By Dave Ibtata
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The Carbondale City Council heard warnings Monday night of legal ramifications of three proposed commercial sign-licensing ordinances.

"Any sign which becomes hazardous or unsafe shall have its license revoked," one proposed ordinance states. "Any sign which does not have a valid license shall cease to be a legal sign and may be removed by the city."

"You're surely not going to (pull down signs) legally," Councilman Hans Fischer said. Businessmen could contest the constitutionality of the proposed ordinances, Fischer said, adding, "If the signs are not kept up, we have hazardous building ordinances and other ways to bring down signs."

The ordinance packages put before the council for discussion at its informal session Monday comprised:

Burglars active at Boomer Hall

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Burglars are beginning to make a habit of patronizing Boomer Hall, an East Campus triad. About $2,000 worth of belongings from Boomer have been stolen in the last week, according to Mike Norrington, SIU security police community relations officer.

During the weekend, sometime between 10 a.m. Saturday and 5 p.m. Sunday, Tom Sweeney of 313 Boomer III, was the victim of thieves, who got away with $250 worth of goods, according to the police report. Sweeney said he locked the door of his room before he left for the weekend, but signs of forcible entry were not evident, Norrington said.

Norrington said it is not known why so many thefts have been occurring in Boomer, but the security police are making sure that they keep their regular beats in the East Campus area at full force.

Norrington said the only advice he can give residents is to keep doors and windows locked, report suspicious looking people to the police and report any loss of keys.

Virginia Benning, University Park manager, also said the $2,000 figure approximated by Norrington for theft in Boomer Hall for the past week is not accurate. She could not provide the exact amount, nor the number of thefts that have occurred in the past week. Benning was questioned after office hours and said records would not be available until morning.

Members of the U-Park staff have discussed the possibility of having Norrington come to the area and speak with residents about crime prevention, but decided against it, Benning said.

"We've had him over here several times earlier this year. We think we have told the residents everything that is possible. The staff members here can give the same advice," Benning said.

Prosecutor to paint picture of conspiracy saying he would not allow himself to become a scapegoat. He was fired by Nixon on April 30, after months of handling the White House response to the various Watergate investigations.

Dean will be the first prosecution witness Tuesday once three of the defense lawyers have made their own opening statements in the trial, which is expected to last three or four months. Ben-Veniste presented the now-familiar story of the cover-up in a courtroom jammed with reporters, about 35 spectators and some relatives of the defendants. He spoke for just more than three hours, describing the cover-up in short, simple sentences, describing hundreds of meetings, phone calls and actions which comprise the complicated conspiracy case.

Among the few new developments was the assertion that former White House aide Richard Moore, who attended one of the crucial meetings of the cover-up, was pressured to forget what he remembered about how some payoffs to the original Watergate defendants were handled.

Ben-Veniste quoted Haldeman as telling Nixon that Moore's memory on the February 1973 meeting at La Costa, Calif., "has become feeble beyond measure." Nixon, according to the prosecutor, said later he was "gratified that Moore's recollection had dimmed a lot."

Earlier, Ben-Veniste said Moore had been prepared to back up Dean's testimony on the meeting.

Another new element disclosed in the alleged conspiracy was $25,000 Ben-Veniste said was obtained from Nixon's friend, Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo, for use in paying the original Watergate burglars.

In his opening statement to the jury, Ben-Veniste said defendant and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell dispatched an emissary to Florida to pick up $50,000 in cash from Rebozo.

The prosecutor said the money was picked up by Nixon re-election committee official Frederick LaRue on Oct. 12, 1973. Half went to an unnamed gubernatorial candidate, he said. It was not clear if Rebozo knew how the money was to be used.

For more than a year, the prosecutor told the jury, the defendants illegally tried to write off the original Watergate burglars as men "off on a lark of their own."

Two women report rapes

Two rapes were reported in Carbondale Sunday.

The rapes took place at opposite ends of the same street and at about the same time.

According to Carbondale police, a 20-year-old SIU coed was forced into a car by three men at the intersection of South Marion Street and East Grand Avenue shortly after 3 a.m.

The second rape took place on North Marion Street. A 22-year-old Freeport woman was raped by two men who, she said, forced her into a car after one of them displayed a gun.

The two men and the woman had been drinking at the Palms Tavern on North Washington Street, prior to the attack, police said.

Temporary real estate signs not exceeding 25 square feet in area, window promotional signs, political signs and yard sale signs will be exempt from licensing.

"There are some signs right now I'd think would be rather foolish to license every year," Councilman Archie Jones said.

"This (ordinance) has minimal effect on life in the city of Carbondale, and there's so many other things to be concerned about," Fischer said.

—JIM RIDINGS—SOUTHERN ILL. UNIVERSITY DAILY EGYPTIAN

Another expensive eyesore for SIU

By Jim Murphy
Student Writer

It would appear that the campus planners of this university have taken a line from an old Joni Mitchell tune, "Big Yellow Taxi." "They paved paradise and put up a parking lot," is a theme running through SIU's master plan. Nowhere is this more evident than in the plans for a new parking lot to be located in the central campus area.

The new facility, a two-story garage capable of holding 365 cars, is planned for the small area bounded by Faner on the west, Parkinson Laboratory on the north, and the Student Center on the south. The area was previously used as a construction zone during the work on Faner. It's now an eyesore that should be quickly eliminated.

But turn it into a double-decked parking garage? No way.

The men behind SIU's master plan for construction should instead take measures towards preserving the few trees left on the site and create a public-use area. There are nearby locations just as suitable for more parking space as the proposed location.

Plans for the parking facility were approved by the Board of Trustees at its April meeting. The $900,000 price tag is being paid out of collected parking fees and fines. Assistant director of Facilities and Planning, Williard C. Hart, said bids on construction will go out sometime this month, and a contract should be awarded at the November Board meeting. "We should break ground ten days after the contract is awarded," Hart said.

The need for additional parking space to serve the users of the Student Center, Faner, and Shryock Auditorium is apparent. The fee lot across Lincoln Drive from the Student Center simply cannot handle the volume of cars that come into the area each day. A student worker at the lot, Kerri Radis, said the lot is full by 9 a.m. each day. "People have to go all the way to the south side of the Arena to find a parking space," she said.

The University's solution to the problem is the proposed parking garage. It has several outstanding drawbacks. First, when it opens, the already heavy volume of traffic on Lincoln Drive in front of the Student Center will increase. The lure of 365 choicely located parking spaces will be too much to resist for many of those already using outlying parking lots. Even Hart anticipates traffic congestion difficulties. "We would have to assign a policeman to direct traffic in front of the facility every day from 4 to 5:30 p.m.," he said.

Secondly, a two-story garage would be an eyesore in an area already dominated by the Faner building. Hart admitted the height of the parking structure was deliberately held down so as not to overpower other buildings in the area. But why go to all the trouble of building a new facility if maximum space potential will not be realized?

The proposed plans for the new structure accurately address themselves to the parking problem - but they do not provide the best possible solution.

The alternatives to the proposed site already lie before the campus planners. Their master plan includes future expansion of parking lot 10 (just south of Anthony Hall), and construction of a new lot on the site of the athletic practice field east of McAndrew Stadium. Carrying out these plans now would provide a more suitable solution to the central campus parking problem. The land area of these two sites alone is far greater than the site of the proposed garage. By adding parking space closer to U.S. highway 51, the heavy volume of cars that use Lincoln Drive could be alleviated, and access to the main highway, both north and south, would be easier.

If the University goes ahead with its plans and the parking garage becomes a reality, perhaps the need for an accompanying project will become apparent: a pedestrian overpass across Lincoln Drive in front of the Student Center—it'll be the only safe way to cross the street.

Although the present condition of the proposed site may not approach Joni Mitchell's idea of paradise, with some landscaping it would certainly look much better than it does now and it would undoubtedly be more aesthetically pleasing than a double-decked parking garage. A little greenery would also help ease the eyestrain of the Faner building.

Now that most of the construction fences that used to surround the site of the proposed garage have come down, take another look at the area the next time you walk by. The potential of that small plot of land should suggest more than a parking garage.

Fanne Foxe deserves a tax write-off

By Bill Layne
Editorial Page Editor

The name of Fanne Foxe is more well-known this week thanks to one of Washington's foremost tax authorities, Rep. Wilbur Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee. Mills was involved in an incident a week ago Monday that brought him more notoriety than his critical assessments of former President Nixon's tax statements.

Throughout last week, while the midnight swim was still the talk of Washington, Mills said that the woman who jumped into the tidal water near the Jefferson memorial was a friend of the family.

Fanne Fox, whose pictures graced every newspaper from Maine to California, was much more than a close friend of the family. One might say she was rather intimate with the Washington bureaucrats. Nonetheless, her intimacy blossomed into full-fledged publicity as her love for the political waves of Washington took on a new meaning when she plunged into the Potomac.

The fact that Mills rebuffed any charges of mischief for an entire week shows that politicians, even ones with an impeccable record, don't want to get involved in dubious circumstances when they can always fabricate their own stories. And for Fanne Foxe? The rumor around Washington right now is that the other members of the House Ways and Means Committee are considering giving her a tax write-off for duties performed in the public service.

A new line-up for concert tickets

By Jeff Jouett
Student Editor-In-Chief

If the Robert Goulet concert can be discounted—and it can—the Oct. 26 Sly and the Family Stone appearance will be the school year's first Arena concert that lots of students care about.

It's now too late to inject injustice into the ticket buying process for this concert. Students have dutifully formed "controlled" lines that efficiently preserved their places in the ticket buying line. But for the NEXT concert, I hereby announce the formation of a "contorted line" (call it Con line) under my supervision.

Con line is, of course, a line to get a place in the line that gets you a place in the "controlled" line that preserves your place in the ticket buying line (sorta).

"Controlled" line was used for all major concerts last year. Because it has proven itself to be so hassle-free and unequivocally fair, ticket seekers are respectfully notified that my Con line is diabolically nasty. Con line is engineered to pacify the honest, diligent concert-goer while still getting the best Arena seats to the lazy, inconsiderate student-burns.

Here's the Con line rules and rationale (any semblance to "controlled" line rules is purely coincidental):

1. Con line sign-up will begin at 7 a.m. in the Student Center—one half-hour after the building officially opens. This entices the average student into showing up at 6:30 a.m. only to find himself in line behind 27 Student Center workers and 39 co-students who came at 6 a.m. and begged or bribed janitors into opening up early. This also lets everyone get up before daylight and stand in line for an hour.

2. I will arrive 30 minutes late to record names on my yellow legal pad, taking the names of people as they come to me. This encourages extensive but playful cutting in line and allows me to give the first person place number 98 in Con line—behind 97 of my friends and friends of friends.

3. All you concert freaks must check with me daily in the Student Center between the hours of 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. or your name might be dropped to the end of the Con line. This rule keeps aflame the hope of everyone to better their lot in line. It also gives the impression that I'm working hard enough to deserve the best tickets in the house—which I'll get anyway since my name is first on my list.

4. Finally, those who by whatever means end up first in the "individual" Con line may purchase up to 19 tickets for themselves. This allows 18 gleeful people who didn't lick a lick of work to get better seats than you. That is 18 people for every warm body who has wiggled his way in front of you, by hook, line, or crook, in the Con line.

And there you have it. Mail ordering tickets is too random and too painless. Just forming a single line to buy tickets on the day they go on sale is too simple.

Controlled line, a miracle equivalent to teaching the blind to talk, has unfortunately taken the inequality and hassle out of the above two methods.

Con line will once again establish the W.C. Fields policy of never giving an honest student sucker an even break.

Allen 'pressed' out of sports

To the Daily Egyptian:

In response to Ron Sutton's article October 11, 1974.

About 10 years ago an ugly cloud of ignorance, misunderstanding, and jealousy rose in the skies of Philadelphia and fell upon the shoulders of one of the greatest baseball players of all time, Dick Allen. As time went on the cloud grew and followed Dick to St. Louis and Los Angeles. Then he came to Chicago and we, the fans, loved Dick for what he was and were proud to stand in ovation as Nancy Faust played the most appropriate of songs for Dick Allen, "Superstar". But the Chicago sports writers, in an attempt to show they can be as ignorant, misunderstanding and jealous as anybody, continued the assault.

Dick Allen is gone now because of the "sick" reporters and press. Dick is an individual who refused to be a puppet answering to the tugs of the press who seem to feel a superstar hasn't the right to be himself and must fit their molds. If he should come back it would be a benefit to all of baseball and I would support him wherever he played. But I hope he doesn't, because it would only renew all the incidents and enjoyment to those who are really "sick"—Sutton and those reporters who drove Dick Allen out of baseball.

Concerned only to a point

To the Daily Egyptian:

Wednesday night I had the opportunity to go to the Student Center to hear Paul Simon voice his opinion on Common Cause and answer any questions that anyone had. The first part of the program Nan Waterman talked about Common Cause. It seemed that most of the students were there just to hear her because it was required for a class. After Waterman finished speaking and Paul Simon was to speak, many students got up to leave—they had fulfilled their requirement. And most of them couldn't care less how much noise they made leaving. In fact, they were quite rude and tacky about the whole thing. It was really disappointing to see that so many students weren't concerned enough to find out the views of a candidate running for Congress, a man who would possibly represent their state. The only thing they were concerned about was getting points for a class.

Well, I hope one day just to have an awareness of the problems and situations around them will be enough reward and they won't be doing things for points. This is when we'll have more responsible concerned citizens. I hope that day comes soon.

Vets increase discriminates

To the Daily Egyptian:

This morning I read, with great dismay, the proposed GI educational bill which has just recently passed the House by a vote of 388 to 0. I am amazed, but not amused, by the provision that allows an increase from 36 months to 45 months of educational allowance. This increase is to be used for undergraduate studies only. I can not believe this distinction has been made between undergraduate and graduate studies. WHY! I see no reason why it should matter how a vet uses his GI bill, but whether he uses it at all. How does Congress justify its actions?

I have been counting on the extension to further my education; but now, since your 'august' body of men and women has deemed it fit to place a weight around the veterans neck by not allowing graduate work unless it is accomplished within 36 months, I and many other vets will not be able to continue in school. It is really gratifying to know how much this country appreciates my time spent in the service. It seems that because I had two years of college before I entered the service, I now must pay for it. Why are you discriminating against me and my fellow graduate student-veterans?

Let me ask you this question. What good is a bachelor degree anyway? In today's world a bachelor degree is as common as a high school diploma. What I feel you are telling me and my fellow graduate student-veterans is that you do not give a damn whether we 'get ahead' or not. You wish us to stay where we are and just keep on trying. Bull shit is my answer!

I realize that this letter will not even be read by you but probably by your assistants. Who cares. I will never vote for any of you again, that is, if I vote again. And to you Senator Stevenson, I voted for you back in 1970 because at that time you were the White Knight. I saw you speak at a rally in downtown Chicago. I had just gotten out of Vietnam and you were anti-war and pro-veteran. Well, you still may be anti-war, but you are certainly not pro-veteran anymore. Thanks for nothing.

Modern murder

To the Daily Egyptian:

How dare Assistant Professor Eunice Charles equate individual liberty with abortion? Murder, I would emphatically like to point out, never was, is not, and never will be an individual liberty.

Her argument is a monstrous and sickening perversion: that the services of a hired killer are to be permitted by law in order to protect the amateur from getting hurt in a high risk occupation.

In contrast to Paul Simon and his doubletalk (which was, unfortunately used to tie him with the death peddlers), Val Oshel should be commended for his forthright, unambiguous and principled rejection of murder on demand.

BAS program worthwhile

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to thank Professor Clifford Harper for his rebuttal letter (Daily Egyptian, 10-9-74) on John Baier's statement (Daily Egyptian, 9-27-74) concerning why there is a high dropout rate among black students. Harper put it very well in his letter and I agree, because when a person goes around making harsh statements such as Baier did, he should learn to research his subject in depth.

The Black American Studies program is working very well with students and they should be commended for that. If a person chooses to drop out or if he is

Right to abortion is legal murder

To the Daily Egyptian:

It is interesting to note that Eunice Charles supports the Supreme Court's decision on abortion because it "gives women a 'choice' and eliminates 'a return to the back alley abortionist and the coat hanger'." (Daily Egyptian, October 10, 1974)

Perhaps Charles would support making all types of murder legal if performed by a doctor under sanitary conditions. Judging from the number of doctors willing to perform abortions, finding a doctor willing to take care of your favorite enemy shouldn't be too difficult—for a proper fee, of course. This would eliminate the need for ambulances, time bombs, "hit" men, Saturday night specials, and other current methods of murder.

Not only women but everyone would "have a choice". No one would be "required to have" someone murdered and no one would be "denied the right" to have a "legal" murder performed.

forced to drop out no one has the right to blame one of the most constructive programs at the University without substantial proof. And from Harper's letter everyone can see the function Black American Studies has and its purpose for being established. It helps black students as well as others become aware of the minority culture and through this program, many students are benefiting from it.

So I say to you John Baier, before you make such trite remarks, do your homework first.

No nightmares at registration

To the Daily Egyptian:

I wish to express my appreciation to the student body for being so receptive to our new registration processing system which went into effect on September 30 with advance registration for Spring Semester, 1975. Our terminal operators had had little experience on the equipment and we had lines the first several days. Everyone seemed to be very patient with us and with our problems. With our greater experience a great deal and hope to be able to process your registrations more rapidly accurately.

At the moment there are no lines most of the time. I would encourage those of you who are not yet registered for Spring Semester to register as early as possible to avoid lines and greater problems later.

Expensive dinner

MedPrep goals, qualifications stated

By Karen Decker
Student Writer

The Medical Education Preparatory Program (MedPrep), which started on the Carbondale campus in September 1972, is unknown to most SIU students, says the program's director.

Michael L. Rainey said MedPrep is designed to help minority students and others prepare for medical school.

The majority of students in MedPrep have a degree, but have come back to try to get into medical school. "We fill a gap—We become the sponsors and advisers," Rainey said.

There are requirements which students must meet to be accepted into MedPrep. The student must be an Illinois resident, with preference given to those from Central or Southern Illinois.

The second requirement is evidence that the student who wants to enter the program has a sincere wish to become a doctor.

Thirdly, the student should have the potential so that, with intensive tutoring, he would be able to meet medical school admission standards.

The last qualification is that the student be a minority group member, a veteran, a woman or be from a low-income, rural area.

The applicants go through a battery of tests in science and math, then have two or three interviews with the MedPrep faculty. The student's record is investigated, then Rainey makes the final decision on the admission of each student.

Even though there is no guarantee of admission to the SIU School of Medicine, MedPrep tries to prepare the students for what lies ahead in medical school courses by the use of a well-coordinated curriculum and some advance course work. These courses give students a "very good preview" of courses in a medical school curriculum, Rainey said.

The students who participate in MedPrep at SIU do not have to go to the SIU Medical School. Two of the 11 accepted into medical schools are attending the University of Illinois and one is at the Maharry Medical College.

Survey about health matters

SIU, HEW conduct study

By Karen Decker
Student Writer

A survey. "Those questions are all tricky," some people say. "Those guys twist your answers around."

Well, that surely isn't the case with the Measuring Health Concepts Project, a research program presently being conducted by the SIU School of Medicine according to Russell Wright, one of the directors of the project.

This research program which is a joint research effort of the SIU School of Medicine and the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, is essentially scale development research, Wright said.

"We gather data regarding how people feel about a wide range of health matters for the purpose of developing a series of questionnaires that may be used by other researchers among groups of people of interest to them," Wright said.

When the Measuring Health Concepts people have isolated an area in which they want to conduct a study, they go there and recruit people who live in that area to be the interviewers, Wright said. Those interviewers then get in touch with a certain number of people in the area and ask them to fill out questionnaires.

These completed questionnaires are then returned to the Measuring Health Concepts staff, where the information is analyzed and interpreted.

'Tommy Allen Show' whimsical, biting

By Michael Hawley
Daily Egyptian
Entertainment Editor

Reactions to "The Tommy Allen Show-Carbondale" will probably be as varied and intense as the hundreds of sensory-stinging stimuli the show manages to deal out.

Subjecting the audience to everything from whimsical fun and biting satire to raw confrontation with human emotion, "The Tommy Allen Show" is a theater experience Carbondale is unlikely to forget by next week. No matter what one's final judgment of the show might be, director Phyllis Wagner, the Southern Players and everyone else involved should be thanked for making this experience available to Carbondale audiences.

Written by open theater playwright Megan Terry, "The Tommy Allen Show" is divided into four unique parts which take place in varying locations throughout the Communications Building. Part two, which happens in the University Theater, is the main part of the production and deserves first attention.

With the University Theater believably transformed into a television studio by Randy Lockwood's set design, the show begins as a satire on late night television talk shows. While waiting for the show to begin, the audience listens to the orchestra warm up and a ballerina on roller skates demonstrates the electric applause and laughter cues.

After a lot of apprehensive ballyhoo by the "Tommy Allen Singers," Tommy Allen is finally cheered on stage for what starts out to be another "five-nights-a-week 52 weeks-a-year" show. Typically, musical numbers are performed and guests are introduced to sing and chat with their host. Untypically, three other Tommy Allen's are introduced, each one representing a talk show host stereotype.

Gradually, the show departs from the plastic framework of television talk shows and attempts to say something about the hurting people existing behind the packaged images, and America's hero-worship relationship to its prominent entertainment figures. Through selfish and compassionate interactions, the characters come to realize they are only "pain reflectors" for a viewing public that has never been "trained for intimacy."

Although the ideas "The Tommy Allen Show" tries to convey are interesting and important, often the techniques used to demonstrate them are rough and questionable. Frequent use of reality departure and abstraction works brilliantly at times, but these methods usually fit clumsily into the television talk show framework.

But apart from all its heaviness, part two of the show is also a lot of fun. Terry's script, which attacks everything from sexism to commercialism, contains enough razor sharp humor to last Carol Burnett an entire season—if she didn't have to worry about censorship.

Most of the special bulletins, announcements and commercials, some written by Terry and others written and localized for Carbondale by Lewis Bolton, are witty and delightfully shocking. These are acted out on the sides of the stage by a company of eight talented players. Cynthia Schramm deserves special country and western singer and female chauvinist pig. Her parody of female country and western singers is on target as she whimpers lines like "When I killed your mother I was only testing you to see if you'd be true."

The role of John J. Johnson, the child molester, is taken on by John Olinick with more sleaziness than Peter Lorre's "M." Christine Coyle plays Mrs. Florence Assbite, the middle aged woman who is such a rotten performer that everyone just loves her.

Every show has to have its host, and Robert Hollister is representative of all the smiling humanoids who sustain themselves nightly on the warmth of audience applause. Rounding out the cast is James Belushi in the unfortunate role of a militant rock star, and Debbie Brown and Dave McCracken as Tommy IV.

Before the main part of the "Tommy Allen Show" begins, the audience can anticipate in a sideshow of sensory experiences and displays. Upon entering the Communications Building, a gallery of huge promotion glossies greets you and gives a hint of what's to come. Audience involvement with the show begins immediately by watching rehearsal tapes and slides in the lounge.

Included in this interesting pre-show are scenes from Chekov plays which are performed in the courtyard. The green room weapons display makes a statement about children's war toys, particularly the video film of children actually playing with these toys.

A walk through the Laboratory Theater reveals a number of crazy things to touch and play with. Among other things, newspapers are made available to make paper hats. Most people chose to make paper cannon balls and throw them at the woman singing opera on the elevated lighting bridge.

The most disturbing part of "The Tommy Allen Show" happens in part three among the pipes and boilers in the Communication Building's basement. Setting themselves up in various locations around the cold metal apparatuses, cast members recite prepared speeches in which they wildly cry for understanding as people, not as things.

Like walking through a zoo of bizarre animals, audience members can elect to either laugh and quickly walk past each cage—only seeing each person as an actor in a play, or listen and try to understand them. The intense feelings created by them makes it almost impossible to take the first route, and unbearably depressing to take the second.

Megan Terry was in Carbondale for the show, and said that in another production cast members set themselves up in various states of torture for this part of the show. Audience members either helped them out or tortured them more, she said.

After leaving this hellish catacomb, part four consists of drinking coffee and watching tapes of the performance—a sort of "bringing back to earth" for everyone.

There are many things wrong with "The Tommy Allen Show." Some of the material is outdated, and many of its fuzzy concepts do not hold together well. Problems with technical cues and the orchestra also put a strain on the show, although these were taken care of during the weekend performances. But much more is right about the show than is wrong. It reflects an awful lot of effort and care, and for $1.75 ($2.25 for the general public) note for her imitations of Richard Nixon, a giant insect, and Carbondale's foremost dining hostess, "Betty Lou."

A Review

One commercial for the High Heaven Heroin Company advertises "needles and heroin bags for Barbie and Ken, a little prostitute outfit for Barbie when she has to support Ken's habit, and a drag outfit for Ken when Barbie is too sick to stroll."

Another fun part of the show is "Beat the Boys in the Band," where audience members try to stump the band with songs they won't know. At Thursday evening's preview performance, Archibald McLeod, Chairman of the Theater Department, won ten free games of pinball from Downstairs Arcade because the band couldn't play "That's the Reason I Wear My Kilt."

A gallery of fine and sometimes brilliant performances are given by nine actors who play the four Tommies and four guest stars (Tommy IV is a vaudeville horse operated by two people). Occasionally, however, their interpretations are weighted down by a script which contains a lot of useless wooden words.

As Dan Daniels' The Queen of Comedy, Lewis Bolton is all effeminate fire and fury. A Tiny Tim via Marjoe, Bolton creates an atmosphere of tepid enthusiasm as he leads everyone on stage in a session of wild repentance and testifying.

Christine Heins is mesmerizing as Tommy III, the glamorous Hollywood star. Particularly impressive is her sensually icy opening monologue and song, "The Night I Shot My Maidenform Bra." Linda Invergo also turns in a good performance as Sally Sommers, it's a theater experience that shouldn't be passed up. "The Tommy Allen Show" will happen again on Friday and Saturday night. Go early and fully enjoy the pre-show.

Local firm, others on trial for bid rigging

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Closing arguments began Monday in the trial of three Southern Illinois roadbuilding firms, including one from Carbondale, charged with rigging the bids on $9 million in government projects.

Charged in the current proceedings are E.T. Simonds Construction Co. and its president, Eugene T. Simonds, Carbondale; J.D. Barter Construction Co., and its president, H.H. Barter, Harrisburg; and Superior Structures, Inc., Marion.

On trial are the three firms and two of their executives who were among 22 firms and four individuals indicted in January on charges they conspired to set the low bids on government road projects awarded between January 1969 and March 1972.

Thomas Howard, chief federal prosecutor, told the U.S. District Court jury of seven women and five men there was "strong, overpowering evidence of guilt" shown in the month-old trial.

"Tell the people of Illinois by your verdict that the evidence did show it. Blow the whistle. Blow it hard. Blow loud," Howard said in his closing statement.

The government contends that because of the conspiracy, road prices in Illinois were set at an artificially high level.

In the first trial, one corporation pleaded guilty, testified for the government and two other firms were convicted. All three companies are awaiting sentencing.

The government contends that Barter and Simonds arranged a meeting prior to a June 4, 1971 bidding which resulted in a bid-rigging deal.

The chief executives of those three firms have been granted immunity from prosecution as individuals and they have testified as the chief government witnesses in the trial.

According to these three men, the Barter and Simonds group agreed to let them have one project while Barter and Simonds would get two others.

To conceal the deal, the government witnesses said, Barter and Simonds agreed to submit an inflated bid on the project which was going to the second group while the second group would submit inflated bids on the projects destined for Barter and Simonds.

Superior Structures was implicated in the arrangement, according to the government, when its president was told of it by one of the men who has now been granted immunity.

Barter and Simonds took the stand in their own defense and said they did not arrange any deal on the projects.

Penalty for conviction on the charges is a maximum of $50,000 fine for corporations and a fine of up to $50,000 and a jail sentence of up to one year for individuals.

Did You Know

Here's a tough football question: As you know, a passer in football cannot throw a pass if he is over the line of scrimmage—but what is the ruling if a pro quarterback steps over the line of scrimmage and then steps back behind it again, and passes? Is that a legal pass? Answer is yes. He can cross the line of scrimmage and then retreat to throw from behind the line. It's a legal pass.

Only two male tennis players, and two women tennis players in history have ever won the Grand Slam of tennis—that is, winning the U.S., British, Australian and French tournaments all in the same year. Can you name the four who have done it? They are: Rod Laver (1962 & 1969), Don Budge (1938), Maureen Connolly (1953) and Margaret Court (1970).

If Hank Aaron's all-time home run record lasts as long as Babe Ruth's did, do you know what year somebody will break Aaron's mark? Well, Ruth hit his last home run in 1935 and his total wasn't topped till 1974—a span of 39 years, so if Aaron's record lasts that long, it will be the year 2013 till someone tops Aaron.

Crab Orchard is a diversified refuge

Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge is one of over 350 wildlife management areas administered by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife of the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service within the Department of the Interior. This system of refuges including areas in Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii was established primarily to protect migratory birds. However, the protection of colonial nesting birds, safeguarding rare or endangered species of birds and mammals, and big game animals such as bison and bighorn sheep, are also important functions of National Wildlife Refuges.

Crab Orchard Refuge actually began as a work relief-flood control project during the depression-ridden thirties. In 1936, 32,000 acres of hilly, over cropped, overgrazed, and otherwise long abused land, mostly in Williamson County, Illinois, was acquired by the Resettlement Administration Service and became known as the Crab Orchard Creek Project. This project was developed as (1) an industrial water supply, (2) a land utilization project and (3) for recreational purposes. Original plans called for the construction of three lakes on Crab Orchard Creek and tributaries totalling 8,720 surface acres.

Crab Orchard Lake of 6,910 acres was finished in 1939 and Little Grassy Lake of 1,000 acres was completed in 1951 by the Works Progress Administration and the Soil Conservation Service. World War II halted construction of a third reservoir, Devils Kitchen Lake. Construction on this lake was resumed in 1956 by the Army Corps of Engineers and the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and was completed in 1959. This lake contains 810 surface acres.

Geographic location and available water supply led to the establishment of the Illinois Ordnance Plant at Crab Orchard Lake early in World War II. At that time 12,000 additional acres were acquired by the War Department on the east side of the project. Also at that time, 10,000 acres of the original 32,000 acre Crab Orchard Creek Project were transferred to the War Department making a total of 22,000 acres in the Illinois Ordnance Plant and leaving 22,000 acres of the original project under the administration of the Soil Conservation Service. This division of administration remained until August 5, 1947, when by act of Congress, the entire Crab Orchard Creek Project and Illinois Ordnance Plant totalling 44,000 acres were transferred to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The chief provisions of this act stipulated beneficial uses be made of the land including the development of wildlife conservation, recreation, agriculture and industry. These stipulations have provided the guidelines for management since the area has been a National Wildlife Refuge. In 1964, 960 acres were transferred to the Department of Justice, Bureau of Prisons, for the development of a maximum security institution, leaving a balance of approximately 43,000 acres for refuge operations.

It should be pointed out that Crab Orchard is typical of most National Wildlife Refuges only insofar as it affords sanctuary to thousands of migratory waterfowl and other game. Industrial management and intensive recreational management, normally foreign to refuges, are made possible by the size of the area, facilities present, and a Congressional directive. Since its function as a refuge is primarily that of a wintering area for Canada geese, these other uses are compatible, whereas they obviously would not be on a refuge supporting larger breeding populations of wildlife.

Located relatively close to the confluence of two of the Nation's great rivers, the Ohio and Mississippi, the refuge is ideally situated to provide a migration haven for the thousands of ducks and Canada geese that journey the Mississippi Flyway each fall and spring. As many as 15,000 ducks and 90,000 Canada geese have been counted on the refuge at one time during the Autumn migration. From 75 to 90 thousand Canada geese spend the entire winter on the lakes and farmlands of the refuge. About one half, or 22,000 acres of the refuge is closed to hunting. Other forms of public use are kept to a minimum within this closed area to afford maximum protection to wildlife.

To meet the food requirements for these large concentrations of waterfowl, approximately 6,000 acres of refuge land are managed for cropland and 5,000 acres managed for grazing and haying. Most farming is accomplished by local farmers through a share-cropping permit system. One third of all grain crops grown are left unharvested in the field as the refuge share. These unharvested grain crops, mainly corn and grain sorghums, furnish the bulk of the waterfowl food.

More than 1,000 head of livestock are grazed annually on the refuge by local farmers. Since Canada geese also do considerable grazing, this type of land management fits ideally into the management program. All agricultural operations on the refuge are carried out under Soil Conservation Service approved farm plans. Contour farming, strip cropping, and other soil conserving practices are followed wherever soil type and topography necessitate such measures. Soils fertility is maintained through the application of limestone and fertilizers.

Forest management is followed on approximately 15,000 acres—5,000 acres of which are in plantations. These plantations, mostly shortleaf and loblolly pine, were established in the late thirties and early forties while the area was still under the administration of the Soil Conservation Service.

With 22,000 acres on the west and south sides of the Refuge designated as a public use area—various types of outdoor recreation are available. Hunting and fishing are encouraged on the public use area. State regulations and licenses apply. Canada geese, mallards, quail, squirrels, rabbits, and deer provide the major targets although the majestic "honker" is by far the most popular game sought. Largemouth bass, crappie, and bluegill are the chief sport fishes taken. Catches of 6 largemouth bass, the legal State limit, totalling 40 pounds or more are not uncommon on Little Grassy Lake. Camping, picnicking, boating, swimming, and field trialing attract thousands of recreationists each year. Boats may be rented or launched on Crab Orchard, Little Grassy, and Devil's Kitchen lakes and public boat docks are located on each lake. Crab Orchard Lake provides two public marinas where boats may be rented or launched. One public campground directly behind Pirate's Cove Marina encompasses about 100 acres with 310 campsites. Modern facilities such as comfort stations, waste disposal stations, water, tables, firepits, boat docks and launches, and a sand beach are available. Little Grassy (60 campsites) and Devil's Kitchen (40 campsites) each provide campgrounds with all of the above facilities. Concession areas with boat rentals are also available.

Numerous roads throughout the refuge provide excellent viewing of wildlife. Two observation towers south of the refuge fire station on Route 148, are excellent spots to observe Canada geese.

The Channestown School Trail on the A-3 road, west of the fire station is very popular with school and family groups. It is a self-guided walking trail explaining various wildlife management techniques employed on the refuge. In recent years the refuge has accommodated 1 1/2 million visitors annually.

Hikers don blindfolds in Giant City program

By V. Ken Poston
Student Writer

Blindfolds are useful for park naturalists at the Giant City State Park, near Makanda. One of the interpretive-nature programs available to groups visiting the park visitors center is an interpretive blindfold hike on the Post Oak Trail.

Park Naturalist Tim Merriman said the blindfold hike is a valuable experience for trail-goers because it helps increase the trail-goers' sense of awareness.

According to Merriman, "We are a visually oriented society," yet often we see very little of our natural surroundings. Hopefully, Merriman said, when the hikers are led through the trail blindfolded, they rely on their other senses such as touch, and hearing.

After completing the hike, we think the hikers have sharpened their senses somewhat, and perhaps they are more keen observers.

Merriman said the trail used for the hike is particularly appropriate because it was specially constructed for the blind. It has special facets such as wooden guides along the entire $\frac{1}{4}$ mile, and also it has wood chips along it's surface so the blind have a continuous similar surface to follow.

Garden of Gods offers trails

The Garden of the Gods Recreation Area was developed by the Elizabethtown District of the Shawnee National Forest in 1963. It contains the Pharaoh Camp and Picnic Grounds which consists of twelve camp and ten picnic family units, a portion of the River-to-River Horse Trail, five city blocks of beautiful flagstone walks that take you through the major rock formations, a self explanatory Visitor Information Station at the entrance of the flagstone walk, plus approximately five miles of semi-developed hiking trails.

Many of Southern Illinois' most spectacular rock formations can be seen at the Garden of the Gods

School or other organized groups are invited to call the center at 549-6151 if they wish to schedule an interpretive program at the center. Other activities available for groups are a birdbanding program, a "live snake program and candlemaking.

Recreation Area. These formations were formed about 200 million years ago as the land underwent a geological uplifting. Subsequent wind and water have developed these impressive formations in the exposed rocks.

With a little imagination and study you are able to picture many old and beautiful scenes in this area. As you look at the rock cliffs upon entering the area you will see "Cathedral Rock" which will remind you of the ancient and beautiful cathedrals of the middle east. As you go inside "Woman's Cave," use your imagination a little and see the outline of a gorgeous lady formed in the rock of the cave.

The natural beauty of Giant City State Park towers over the park road.

Rappelling enthusiasts log in hours of rope time on the cliffs at Giant City State Park.

Southern Illinois scenic tour slated

By Pam Black
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The golden, yellow and red hues of autumn which have been highlighting scenery throughout Southern Illinois during the last few weeks, will be at its peak Saturday and Sunday according to Wayman Presley, Presley Tours, Inc. Makanda.

Presley Tours a family organization, will provide complimentary guides for individuals to explore the scenic areas of Southern Illinois Oct. 19 to 20 in a "Fall Color Tour," Presley said.

Individuals are asked to drive their own cars and meet at the Presley Tour Office on U.S. 51, 8 miles south of Carbondale. The cars will form into caravans and leave at 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m., he said.

Self-guided maps, booklets and information will be provided at the Office for those who wish to explore the area on their own, Presley said.

Complementary refreshments of cider and apples will also be available at the Office, he said. Presley said individuals may want to bring sack lunches for the tour.

Currently groups from St. Louis and Central and Northern Illinois who will travel in cars and buses have inquired about the "Fall Color Tour," he said.

The tour will cover four points of scenic interest of Southern Illinois, he said. The caravan will begin with a tour of Giant City State Park and will continue with tours of Ferné Cliffe State Park, Larue-Pine Hills

Ecological Area and Balk Knob, he said.

Presley Tours has not scheduled additional tours of Southern Illinois for fall and winter, Presley said. He said, one of the reasons for not scheduling additional tours is because Southern Illinois does not have any place to accommodate large tour groups.

He said, he has suggested proposals for tourist centers in Giant City State Park and at Cedar Lake, but the Audobon Society member's and young people of Southern Illinois opposed the proposals and were able to stop them.

Presley, who said Southern Illinois has an "overabundance of small imaginations," in referring to tourism of Southern Illinois is pessimistic of the future. Individuals of Southern Illinois have no means of improving the economy of Southern Illinois by tourism, he said.

"I'm thoroughly discouraged with people dragging their feet trying to improve the economy of Southern Illinois," he said.

Presley said he was "ready to quit" trying to bring tourism to Southern Illinois.

Fall climate promotes activities

by Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Southern Illinois climate allows the outdoor recreation fan and the nature freak an ample opportunity to enjoy outdoor activity.

Although camping declines with the falling of leaves, the season provides some people with the rare opportunity to "get away from all the hassles for a while," a spokesman for Chockstone Mountaineering said.

Giant City State Park, because of its closeness to the Carbondale area, is a favorite of students because of the varied recreational Nature hike, clean-up set

A combination interpretive hike and trail clean-up campaign will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at the nature trail at Giant City State Park.

The event will begin at the nature trail entrance. Litter bags will be available for hikers wishing to help with the clean up.

opportunities it provides.

"Students don't participate in some of our organized activities like interpretive hikes, Saturday night campfire programs and live snake handling, they prefer to come to the park for picnics and rappelling down the rocks," Tim Merriman, naturalist at Giant City State Park.

Canoe and boat rentals will be offered fall and winter at the Lake-on-the-Campus boat dock until Nov. 3, he said. Boat rentals at Devil's Kitchen boat dock will be open through the second weekend in November.

"Students like to boat on Devil's Kitchen because of the scenery and also it has no houses cluttering up the shore line," a spokesman for the Devil's Kitchen boat dock said.

"Owing to the fact our team name, Les Hivernants, is a French word for 'The Winterers' our team will be canoeing on the area lakes every weekend this winter," Rich Blanchard, captain of the voyager canoe team, said.

The Big Muddy Canoe Trail will be open to interested boaters this winter. The trail runs 40 miles from the riverside park in Murphysboro to the Mississippi River at Grant Tower.

Grand Tower also offers many recreational opportunities whether it be in the Devil's Backbone State Park or the Larue Pine Hills Ecological area.

If the weather cooperates, ice skating will be available at the Lake-on-the-Campus. A spokesman for the Office of Recreation and Intramurals said the ice would have to be at least three inches thick and skating could take place only on designated areas.

Lake Murphysboro State Park will feature ice-fishing and also sledding if weather allows.

Properly licensed hunters will find the west side of the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge open for general hunting and the east side restricted to hunting in the three day shot gun season.

Perhaps, the leaf-watcher has the easiest fall activity of all, for the next few weeks the leaves almost everywhere will be ablaze with bright fall colors.

Boy Scouts save day

FAIRFAX, Calif. (AP)—When a builder proposed tennis courts in this area, he immediately received protests from residents claiming the construction work would cause too much dust and noise. He had a ready response.

He pointed out that there would be very little grading necessary because Boy Scouts who had used the area for many years had cleared and established camp sites, making perfect spots for tennis courts.

River to River Horse Trail hard riding

By Jerie Jayne
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Would you like to rough it and ride a horse through almost inaccessible areas on an unmarked trail? Such a trail exists in much the same form as our great-grandfathers might have used moving westward.

From the Ohio River, through ponds and creeks, woods and wilderness, the River to River Horse Trail is supposed to wind through Southern Illinois, to the Mississippi River. But the trail doesn't stretch that far.

That's one of the problems with the River to River Horse trail, says Calvin Gillespie of Murphysboro, a self-described enthusiast for horses and outdoor life.

According to Gillespie, the state's failure to provide funds to develop the western part of the trail has resulted in a trail only one-half the length it should be.

"None of it is really marked, except near the Garden of the Gods," he said.

Jerry Clutts, Shawnee Forest district ranger at Vienna, who said he has never ridden the trail, describes it as something the people can locate and use."

He said the trail is "very flexible"—meaning that there are no scheduled tours, there's no cost for using it, you must have your own horse to ride. It's unmarked and riders can get on it at any point and leave anytime they feel like it, he said.

Gillespie, who frequently rides only parts of the trail, said because the trail isn't marked, he wouldn't dare attempt it without a compass.

"Actually the River to River Horse Trail is just a series of timber roads, forest trails, county roads, black topped roads and private property," Gillespie said.

Both Gillespie and his wife,

Nancy, are experienced riders who have roughed it with only lunch in their saddle bags and water in their canteens.

Two years ago, in May of 1972, the Gillespies participated in a three-day group trail ride consisting of about 25 persons.

The group started at Karbers Ridge and headed west through scenic spots such as High Knob, Garden of the Gods, One Horse Gap, Indian Kitchen, Ferne Clyffe, close by Giant City ending in Pine Hills just a day's ride from the Mississippi River.

Gillespie said most of the forest land on the trail is interspersed with private land making it difficult to ride the entire trail due to lack of campsites.

"As it is right now, if you don't know anyone to cut through on their land, the trail would be mostly hard roads," Gillespie explained.

Robert Tucker, director of recreation and law enforcement of Shawnee National Forest at Vienna offered some explanation of the situation.

"We get very little or no money for maintenance of trails. Last year we only spent $1,000 on the horse trail. We spend most of our funds on established recreation areas," he explained.

He said camping in the Shawnee Forest is unrestricted, but there are a limited number of camping areas with facilities such as hitching posts and sanitation conveniences.

Gillespie cited two laws hindering the development of the horse trail.

"In Illinois if you ride a horse on someone's property and get hurt, the landowner is responsible. If they would change that one law it would help a lot," he said.

According to Gillespie, a forest preservation act provides for no coal mining, oil drilling or any alteration of natural form of national forest lands.

"What people don't know," he explained, "is that there are no resources available in these areas because most of them are inaccessible."

"If they keep going like now and change Crab Orchard into an entirely preserved area, they'll be no improvement of any kind and it will cut the River to River Horse Trail in half."

Gillespie said if the state ever decides to develop camping areas along the horse trail, it could be the largest attraction in Illinois.

All the same Gillespie finds a challenge in the horse trail the way it exists.

"I'd like to try and make it with just a sleeping bag and dry foods. I know one guy who said he'd like to go with me," he said.

Crab Orchard Refuge meets varied tasks

Outdoor Laboratory on refuge land around Little Grassy Lake under a Memorandum of Understanding with the refuge. The Outdoor Laboratory facilities are used as a training area in environmental and conservation education.

Practically all of the buildings formerly housing bomb, mine, and shell loading operations of the Illinois Ordnance Plant are now leased to provide industrial corporations. Presently there are about 1 1/2 million square feet of industrial space being leased to private industries which hire about 1,800 employees. The industrial payroll plus the agricultural, timber, and recreational programs operating on the refuge have gone far in bolstering the economy of the surrounding coal mining communities of Carverville, Herrin, Marion, and West Frankfort which were seeing a growing problem of unemployment due to mechanization of the coal mining industry and exhaustion of the coal resources.

Present management problems are concerned largely with keeping each of the major refuge management objectives compatible with the others. Too much emphasis, for instance, on the industrial development of the immediate Crab Orchard Lake Area could jeopardize the wildlife values of the refuge. This is an especially delicate problem since most of the industrial facilities are located within the inviolate portion of the refuge. Also any pollution of the lakes which might result from industrial wastes could wreak havoc with both the wildlife and recreational programs. Agricultural practice must conform to the maximum soil and water conserving standards and still be profitable and feasible to local farm permittees. Being first a National Wildlife Refuge, all phases management must be undertaken with one question foremost in mind, how will it affect wildlife?

When one considers the present healthy status of the Mississippi Flyway Canada goose population to which the Crab Orchard Refuge has been a contributing factor, the number of people employed through facilities of ammunitions plant charged off to war costs; the tangible and intangible benefits of the millions of hours of outdoor recreation provided, it is quite evident that Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge is serving as a multiple land use project and proving the point that there is no longer a place in our language for "wasteland" or the "marginal acre."

Rehabilitation program offers job assistance for disabled

By Betsie Wissbaum
Student Writer

A new program in the Rehabilitation Institute provides work evaluation services for the severely disabled.

The Evaluation Development Center opened in July at the University City complex and is currently operating at capacity level of 30 clients.

Work evaluators assist the severely disabled develop vocational goals. Various psychoanalytic tests are given to determine basic abilities, aptitudes, attitudes and interests. The vocational evaluator then interprets the data to determine the client's work readiness.

Mary Ann Keiner, chief evaluator, said, "There are certain things everyone needs to know to find and keep a job. We give all the information to the client so he is able to decide what he wants to do and his interest in certain jobs. We give him several alternatives."

Two programs offered by the center are adult basic education and driver education.

The adult basic education program provides basic literacy and job skills to enable the client to look for work. Bob Hodge, lead instructor said. The program offers a General Education Degree to anyone who has not received a high school diploma.

Jerry Brown, driver education instructor, said the Center's driver education program helps in motivating drop-outs and the physically handicapped to get jobs. "We are totally integrated with all other departments in setting goals," Brown said.

The Evaluation Development Center is available to anyone 16 years or older. A. Andrew McDonald, co-ordinator of the center, said the adult education program is free, but a charge is assessed for the evaluation. The center is a successor to a workshop program at Ordill and is funded by the Illinois Division of Vocational Rehabilitation and the Office of Superintendent of Public Instruction. A lift is presently being installed so physically handicapped students from SIU may use the center.

Jerome Lorenz, Rehabilitation Institute co-ordinator, said one of the center's problems is finding faculty. The University of Wisconsin at Stout and Auburn University are the only other schools to have this type of program, Lorenz said.

Auburn is the only school to offer a Ed. D. in work evaluation. Consequently enough qualified people are not available, Lorenz said.

Human Sexuality Services will begin a three-week series of evening workshops on human sexuality and identity beginning at 7:30 Tuesday evening in the east campus dorm areas, according to Robin Caplan of Human Sexuality Services.

The first workshop will be held in the Schneider Hall lobby and will discuss decision making, she said.

The awareness of one's self sensuously and sexually will be discussed during the last workshop on Oct. 29 in the Mae Smith lobby, she said.

Caplan said the regularly scheduled Tuesday evening informal rap sessions sponsored by Human Sexuality Services will be canceled and rescheduled for Monday evenings beginning Oct. 21.

Assistant professor serves as host for channel 8 movies

By Brad Johnson
Student Writer

Viewers may have been wondering lately why those crazy introductions for the WSIU-TV channel 8 10 p.m. movies.

His name is Frank Oglesbee an assistant professor in the radio-tv department.

For those who haven't seen him, Oglesbee does a brief, off-beat, introduction which often includes a humorous critique of the film. Criticizing a movie before it is shown may seem to be unorthodox, but Oglesbee believes the audience will have a higher regard for his praise of good films if he pokes fun at the flaws in weak films.

Although Oglesbee has written some movie introductions in the past, this is the first year he has done all himself on camera. Oglesbee searches old filmbooks, New York Times newspapers to get facts and reviews on a particular film. On the average, it takes about an hour of research to get sufficient information for an introduction, which is written and recorded months before it is actually used.

The Oklahoma born Oglesbee said nighttime movies are bought in packages from various studios. The actual selection of films to be shown is made by Dave Rochelle, broadcast services director.

"Admittedly these films are older," Oglesbee said, "but the more recent films are too expensive." Also, he said older films provide variety because recent films are plentiful on other stations.

Some of the movies are popular despite age. W.C. Fields, Bogart and Sherlock Holmes are the standouts. When a Sherlock Holmes film featuring Basil Rathbone was pre-empted for the Rockefeller hearings, some die-hard Holmes fans called in protest.

Movies are seen on WSIU-TV Sunday through Friday nights at 10 p.m. Sunday is comedy night, Basil Rathbone stars as Holmes on Mondays, and classic silent films are presented on Tuesdays. Wednesday is Bergman night, Thursday is devoted to 20th Century Fox productions, and on Friday newer movies are shown.

Upcoming films cited by Oglesbee include "The Unholy Three", "Cloak and Dagger" starring Gary Cooper, and "The Seventh Seal" and "Smiles of a Summer Night" starring Ingrid Bergman. Some early Lon Chaney movies have been scheduled and Oglesbee suggests that everyone keep eyes open so they don't miss "Chandu the Magician", a movie based on a character from early radio days.

"Sex Discrimination: Myths and Realities," will be the topic of discussions during the "Being a Woman" seminar at noon, Tuesday in the Student Center Illinois River Room.

Panel members Debbie Lindrud, Virginia Britton, and Neckama Liss Levinson will discuss the subtle and more publicized types of discrimination.

The panel will use role playing exercises to point out discrimination against women, not only by men, but also by women themselves, Britton, coordinator of the seminar, said.

Assertive training will also be discussed at the seminar, she said. Men and women are invited to at-

Consumer Carnival to offer information to homemakers

By Kathleen Takemoto
Student Writer

The "Consumer Carnival" is coming to town.

The carnival is a part of the Seventh Annual Consumer Conference, set for Oct. 30 at the Student Center.

SIU's Department of Family Economics and Management and the Division of Continuing Education are sponsoring the conference with a number of state homemaker and extension groups.

Linda Mehnert of the Family Economics and Management Department, who is coordinating the Consumer Carnival, said the conference's purpose is to provide consumer information.

"It's especially for homemakers and non-professionals to learn things interesting and useful to them," she added.

Other events scheduled for the conference include consumer-oriented workshops and a luncheon for participants.

Registration for the conference, including the luncheon, costs $4 per person and must be made by Oct. 23. According to Mehnert, a small fee will be charged to persons wishing to attend only the workshops. The carnival will be free and open to the public.

Registration forms for the conference are available in the Family Economics and Management Dept. and Division of Continuing Education.

The day's program is scheduled to begin with registration in the Student Center Gallery Lounge. Celia Maloney, Gov. Dan Walker's assistant for Consumer Affairs, will speak about consumer legislation.

Three workshops will run concurrently in the morning. Asst. Atty. Gen. George Schaeffer, whose office handles consumer complaints, will conduct "Wheels of Fortune," a workshop dealing with consumer fraud.

"Kitchen Merry-Go-Round," a view of kitchen appliances, will be presented by Jacqueline Anderson, assistant professor at the University of Illinois.

Marguerite Robinson of the Federal Food and Drug Administration will conduct a nutrition labeling workshop entitled "Side Show."

The workshops will be repeated in the afternoon to give participants a chance to attend a different program.

A general luncheon is scheduled at noon for conference attendees, while professional home economists will meet for a special business luncheon.

The Consumer Carnival will open at 2:30 p.m. in Ballroom C. According to coordinator Mehnert, 32 displays will be set up to provide consumers information.

The American Cancer Society, U.S. Post Office and local police and fire departments are among organizations presenting displays.

Other sponsors are the Marion regional office of the Illinois Department of Public Aid, the Illinois Home Economics Association, District 6, the Illinois Homemakers Extension Federation, District 10; the Southern Illinois Division of the St. Louis District Dairy Council and the University of Illinois Cooperative Extension Service, Region 10.

Dean Swinburne foresees universities changing rules

By Lenore Sobota
Student Writer

SIU Dean of Student Affairs Bruce Swinburne foresees many changes in the operation of universities within the next five years.

Swinburne, speaking recently to the East Campus Executive Council, said,

"I think we're going to see some tremendous changes in the way universities are run. The courts will rule that 18-year-olds are adults and this will bring about changes in many of our regulations."

Swinburne said the drinking age will be lowered to 18 and students probably would not be required to file an ACT statement about parents' income to receive financial aid.

"I say this will take place in five years," he added.

Swinburne said housing regulations will probably be "thrown out," but added he feels educational benefits are available in dorm living.

Executive Council members questioned Swinburne on the lack of student input to campus-wide committees.

A memo has been sent to President Hiram Lesar and each vice president requesting that they look at all committees and seek active student representation where it is appropriate, he said.

Vern Stubblefield, Triad representative, complained about the inactivity of many committees.

"Proposals are made but not carried through. Talk is continual but nothing is done. It seems to me as though the University is at a point of stagnation," he said.

"I swear to God we are trying to be responsive," said Swinburne, "but I agree sometimes we are too slow. If you had told me five years ago we'd have a student health program like we have today, I would have said you were crazy but through the work of students we have it. This is one case where we've been responsive."

"I think you'll find that all of us are approachable," he added. "I want to hear your concerns. We want to know when we do things wrong but we can't do anything unless you tell us."

Bill Picek, Schneider Tower representative, said part of the problem is a lack of student knowledge.

"If we could get a copy of the board meeting agenda ahead of time, we would know what was coming up and could give you our feelings about it before it was too late," Picek said.

Swinburne said he would see to it a copy of the agenda is provided to the east campus Executive Council as soon as he received it, usually a week prior to the meeting. He asked Carl Harris, East Campus coordinator, to assist the Council in obtaining copies of the board minutes.

PAYMENT—Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for accounts already established. The order form which appears in each issue may be mailed or brought to the office, located in the North Wing, Communication Building. No refunds on cancelled ads.

RATES—Minimum charge is for two lines. Multiple insertion rates are for ads which run on consecutive days without cash change.

Use this handy chart to figure cost:

No. of lines	1 day	3 days	5 days	20 days
2	80	1.50	2.00	6.00
3	1.20	2.25	3.00	9.00
4	1.60	3.00	4.00	12.00
5	2.00	3.75	5.00	15.00
6	2.40	4.50	6.00	18.00
7	2.80	5.25	7.00	21.00
8	3.20	6.00	8.00	24.00

One line equals approximately five words. For accuracy, use the order form which appears every day.

REPORT ERRORS AT ONCE

Check your advertisement upon first insertion and please notify us if there is an error. Each ad is carefully proofread, but still an error can occur. The Daily Egyptian will not be responsible for typographical errors except to cancel charge for such portion of advertisement as may have been rendered useless by such typographical error. Each ad is read back to caller for confirmation. If you notify us the first day of error, we will repeat the ad without charge. SORRY, IF WE ARE NOT NOTIFIED WITHIN ONE DAY, THE RESPONSIBILITY IS YOURS.

Women's field hockey team gains first victory of season

By Pat Matreici
Student Writer

When it comes to scoring goals, the SIU women's field hockey team has a motto: "You gotta want it."

Saturday, the team only got one against Indiana, but made it stand up for the Salukis' first win of the year, 1-0. The victory overshadowed three losses on the day, including a 2-0 defeat by Purdue, the team's first shutout in six games.

Kathy "Stretch" Vondrasek's first-half goal salvaged the Saluki victory.

"The kids played well in the first halves of each game," remarked coach Julie Illner, "but they ran out of steam in the second halves."

The second team played two games against Eastern Illinois University and came up on the short end in both. They were shut out in the first game 1-0, but played well in the second game, only to end up losing 3-2. Kathy Escue scored both goals for the Salukis.

"They played better today than in the past," said Illner of the second team's efforts. "Neither team clearly controlled the second game, play just went up and down the field. Scoring was very free, as indicated in the 3-2 score."

Goalies Kathy Krello and Jill Frain performed well for their respective teams. Krello, with only one week's experience, did a credible job in her first action of the season for the second team. Frain, who moved up to the first team for the weekend's action, came up with key saves in her two games.

On Sunday, the Salukis defeated the Carbondale Club for their second win in a row. The score was 2-1, as Kathy Escue and Kathy Kincaid scored the SIU goals.

Next weekend, the first team will compete in the Midwest Umpiring Conference at St. Louis.

The women's cross country team competed in a meet at Murray State and took second place honors, totaling 44 points. The host school won the meet with a total of 29 points. Kentucky took third with 73 points and Western Illinois University was fourth with 93 points.

SIU's Jean Ohly finished first with a winning time of 12:04 for the two-mile course. Teammate Anne McRae was third in 12:07, and Peggy Evans was seventh at 13:05.

Farther back were Chris Muszynski, 12th in 13:32, Kathie Andrews, 21st in 14:46, and Launa Morrison, 23rd in 15:23.

The female harriers will travel to Urbana next weekend to compete in the Mid-State Striders Invitational. SIU's tennis team competed in the University of Illinois-Urbana Invitational Tournament and came away with no victories in either singles or doubles competition.

Coach Delores Stiff remarked, "We played especially well in doubles, but our solo efforts need a lot of work."

The squad will travel to Normal next weekend and participate in a triangular tennis tournament with Illinois.

The golf and volleyball teams, both off last weekend, will travel to Indiana University this weekend.

IM golfers vie

Thirty-eight participants took part in the SIU Men's Intramural Golf Tournament Saturday at Crab Orchard Golf Course.

Copping top honors in the tournament field was Vince Van DeVelde who shot a 74 (four over par). William Tell Bryan took second prize.

Bryan won an extra hole sudden-death playoff after he and Tom Ferris finished regulation play with identical scores of 75.

Seven individuals shot under 80. Scoring in this group were Phil Valois, 77; Greg Murphy, 78; and Larry Tomaszewski and Bob Okita both with 79.

Trophies were presented to the first and second place finishers as well as to the individual with the highest score.

Meeting planned for flag football

Any male SIU student interested in entering an intramural flag football team for competition during fall semester must attend a meeting for team managers.

The meeting will be held at 4:15 Tuesday in Room 171 of Lawson Hall.

All team rosters must be submitted at this meeting in order to be officially entered for competition. Blank rosters may be obtained in the Office of Recreation and Intramurals in Room 128 of the Arena.

Those interested in officiating these games should plan to attend the flag football rule interpretation meetings prior to the start of the season.

The first meeting was held Monday and the second meeting is set for Wednesday from 4 to 6 p.m. in Room 121 of the Arena.

Field goal foils Bears

CHICAGO (AP) — Abe Gibrón never hesitated a moment and snapped, "If I had to do it over again, I'd do the same thing. Yes, we were trying to run the clock out and go into overtime."

It didn't work. The Bears had to coughup the ball with 36 seconds to play and the Atlanta Falcons, hitting on a long pass from Bob Lee to Ken Burrows, set up a 31-yard field goal by Nick Mike-Mayer with six seconds to play for a 13-10 victory.

"We controlled the game in the second half," said Gibrón, apparently referring to the fact that the Bears had come off a 10-point deficit to climb into a 10-10 tie in the fourth quarter.

"I felt we were in better condition and, who knows, if we would have won the flip in overtime, I think we would have won it."

The loss left the Bears with a 2-3 record and they have lost their three games by a total of nine points.

Gibrón praised his Bears and said "this is a good team and has the potential of being a great team."

Rugby teams fall

Playing on wet grounds Saturday, the SIU A and B rugby teams couldn't score on the University of Illinois.

The A team lost 14-0, while the B team fell 12-0.

Advisor-coach Malcolm Walker said, "We played extremely well. We did very well in holding back a team more experienced with heavier forwards. The three tries scored against us came from our own mistakes reflecting comparative inexperience on our part."

Next week the SIU ruggers travel to Kansas City to participate in the Heart of America Rugby Tournament—a tournament that involves several Midwest rugby teams.

JV's defeated

The SIU junior-varsity football squad lost 23-20 to Illinois State Monday in its first game of the season.

SIU held a 14-2 halftime lead. Quarterback Jim Dickson scored SIU's first TD of the game in the first quarter with a nine-yard run. The kicked failed making the score 6-2. Illinois State scored two points early in the game when a Saluki snarl sailed into the end zone and was recovered by an Illinois State player for a safety.

Tim Cruz scored for the Salukis on an eight-yard run in the second quarter. SIU faked the extra point and ran into the end zone for a two-point conversion.

Illinois State dominated the second half scoring three touchdowns, to put them ahead. SIU's Dickson hit field with a 35-yard scoring pass late in the fourth quarter to complete the scoring.

Not 'thrilling days of yesteryear,' but...

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

"We return now to those thrilling days of yester-year..."

The narrator for the Lone Ranger television and radio series used to say it, and Saluki golf coach Lynn Holder would like to.

However, Holder can't compare his present squad to his championship team of 1964 and his runnerup one of a year later, though he is optimistic SIU is on the upswing again.

"We are definitely one of the best teams in the Midwest," he remarked after his Salukis had finished fourth in the 12-team Illinois State Invitational Saturday. "We run 1-2 in Illinois behind Illinois State, and we've led them at times."

The impressive finish in the 54-hole tourney ended the fall campaign for the divot diggers, ready for a winter of physical workouts before a possible Florida trip in January.

Jim Brown, the usual Saluki medalist, was fifth medalist in the weekend competition, as he fired a 70-76-69-215. Teammate Larry Giacone posted the same total with rounds of 72-75-74.

Bob Tierney, Mark Durham and Jerry Tucker all shot 222's. Tierney recovered from an opening round 80 with a 70 and 72. Durham totaled 73-76-73. Tucker 75-76-71, and non-scoring Brad Miller 79-77-76-67-232.

"If we had been consistent the first day, we'd have won," Holder said. "Illinois State was the only team to beat us that we hadn't already beaten."

The Redbirds totaled 1,077 followed by Austin Peay nine strokes back and Eastern Kentucky 15 back. SIU netted fourth with 1,101.

Four Illinois schools were next, Illinois at 1,107, Bradley at 1,115, SIU-E at 1,121 and Western Illinois at 1,127.

"We're really looking forward to the tournament competition in the spring," Holder remarked, sounding like a baseball manager when he added, "We can hit the ball and can score. I'm very optimistic."

The Salukis have been invited to a tournament in Costa Rica this winter, but Holder will probably pass it up since it will just be 18 or 36 holes. Instead, he would like to make a Florida swing in January, but if that doesn't work out, the opener will be the Mid-South Classic in Tennessee the first week of April.

The Missouri Valley Conference championships wrap up competition in May, with the first two teams qualifying for the nationals in Columbus, Ohio, the third week of June.

"Coaches always hope and have faith in their kids," the 29-year Saluki mentor said. "We are capable of finishing first or second, but West Texas State, North Texas State, New Mexico and Tulsa have fine teams. We have yet to meet three of those teams."

Holder's team, once winners of 40 straight matches ending in 1961, have accumulated a 246-117-10 record in his 28-year reign. Besides his number one and two teams, he also coached the 1968 squad to fifth place.

"We've got a lot going for us again now," he said. "Five of our six men will be back next year, and we have some excellent freshmen in there. If we can get enough practice..."

A's go 'Hunting' for win

By Hal Bock
Associated Press Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — Catfish Hunter, Oakland's 25-game winner, opposes journeyman Al Downing for Los Angeles in Tuesday's third game of the 1974 World Series with the A's prepared to adjust their batting styles to snap a troublesome slump.

"I think we're all over-swinging," said Sal Bando, captain of the club. "But I think we'll start hitting the way we can, now that we're home."

The A's won the last two games of the American League playoff in Baltimore with a total of just five hits. They managed only 12 hits in splitting the first two Series games against the Dodgers in Los Angeles. In the first game alone, the Dodgers had 11 hits.

"Good pitching will stop good hitting," Bando said, "and we've been looking at some good pitching both by Baltimore and Los Angeles. We haven't had many men on, but I think it will come."

Bando took batting practice at a workout with the rest of the A's Monday afternoon. The Dodgers worked out later Monday, preferring to use the field in the late afternoon when sun conditions would approximate those they will face in the three 5:30 p.m., PDT, games here.

In the first two games of the Series, the A's faced Andy Messersmith and Don Sutton, two of the National League's premier pitchers who won 39 games between them in the regular season. Third game starter Downing's 5-6 record suffers by comparison.

"He pitched well late in the season," explained Los Angeles manager Walt Alston. "I think he'll do the job for us."

Downing will be facing Oakland's American League with a 2.43 earned run average and came out of the bullpen to nail down the A's first-game victory Saturday.

Hunter has been embroiled in a contract hassle with owner Charles O. Finley.

Infamous Salukis drubbed by Temple

By Bruce Shapin
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

SIU football finally received the national publicity it has been seeking for many years Saturday. However the news was all bad, as the Temple Owls increased their bid to be rated number one in the East by humiliating the Salukis 59-16.

In less than six minutes, Temple built up a 21-3 lead with a powerful offensive attack led by quarterback Steve Joachim, the nation's total offense leader.

Joachim fell off his total offensive average of 258 yards per game Saturday, only getting 176. He completed five of 13 passes for 159 yards and ran for 17 more in eight carries while playing only about half the game.

"We played very poorly," coach Doug Weaver remarked, "but I don't want to take anything away from Temple. They are an outstanding football team."

"Even if we had played well, we still might not have beaten Temple," Weaver said.

SIU is now 1-4 on the season, while Temple increased its undefeated streak to 12 games—the second longest unbeaten record in the country.

SIU earned a spot in the Temple record book by giving up 460 yards rushing and 162 passing for a Temple single-game mark of 622 total offensive yards.

SIU's Vic Major, carrying the ball for the first time in his collegiate career, returned a Temple kickoff 97 yards for the only Saluki TD of the afternoon in the second quarter. Major fumbled the kick at the three and picked it up at the five.

The freshman from Biloxi, Miss. ran untouched down the right sideline for the second longest kickoff return in Saluki history. The record is 98 yards, shared by Bob Hasberry and Carver Shannon.

"Major had a nice run," Weaver remarked. "He is one of the players we will look at on the depth chart and see if there is some way to work him in."

The Owls wasted no time getting on the scoreboard, moving 63 yards in five plays to score with a little over a minute gone in the game. Joachim hit halfback Bob Harris with a 36-yard pass, setting up a 16-yard TD ramble by Henry Hynoski for the first score of the day.

SIU's Lawrence Boyd fumbled the ball on the first play from scrimmage after the Temple kickoff. The Owls recovered on the Saluki 22. Joachim scored from the two on the fifth play of the drive.

SIU's Fred McAlley went to work after the ensuing kickoff. McAlley hit Pat Forsys at the 50 and Forsys scampered to the 35 yard line of Temple. The Salukis had to settle for a three pointer as Ken Seaman booted a 47-yard field goal, the longest of his collegiate career.

Temple came right back after Seaman's field goal, scoring on a 69-yard touchdown pass. Joachim hit Harris with a bomb making the score 21-9, with 9:04 remaining in the first quarter.

The Salukis kept trying to catch up with the Owls throughout the first quarter. Seaman kicked two more field goals, from the 36 and 29, to make the score 21-9 as the first quarter ended.

Seaman has now kicked six of nine field goals this year and has booted 17 three-pointers since he began kicking for the Salukis last year. Seaman is three short of the school record of 20 field goals set by Gregg Goodman from 1970-72.

Temple started the second quarter going 72 yards on nine plays for its fourth TD of the day. Joachim hit flanker Pete Righi for 43 yards on a third and one situation moving the ball close to pay dirt. Joachim scored his second six pointer of the day running in from the one.

During the next Saluki offensive drive, Andre Herrera fumbled on the SIU 33 yard line. Temple's second stringers couldn't hit for another six pointer, but Don Bitterlich hit a 27-yard field goal making the score 31-16.

"Turnovers kept keeping us from making any type of comeback," Weaver explained.

Temple scored once more before the half ended, driving 71 yards on 10 plays. Joachim drove in for his third and final score of the day making it 38-16.

The Owls continued to roll in the second half, intercepting three Saluki passes and scoring three more times.

"Before the season began there were two things I was worried about," Weaver explained Monday. "I was worried about a team that could shove the ball up the middle on us, and Temple did. I was also concerned about getting wiped out early and Temple certainly did that."

McAlley, who was injured in the third quarter, completed five of 11 passes for 108 yards. Leonard Hopkins replaced McAlley after he left the game with an arm injury. Weaver did not expect the injury to McAlley to be serious.

"The offense had statistically an average performance," Weaver said.

"We will have to see if we can bounce back," said Weaver. "I have an infinite capacity to bounce back, but the players will have to show me if they can bounce back from the loss to Temple. I have a hunch we have enough character on the squad to bounce back."

SIU welcomes Northern Illinois Saturday for its first home game of the year. Northern beat Marshall last week, snapping a three game losing streak. The Huskies are 2-3.

Ducat sale set

Tickets are now on sale for Saturday's football game against Northern Illinois. Due to the limited seating, only SIU students will be allowed to purchase tickets Tuesday through Thursday at the SIU Ticket Office located in the Arena.

"We urge all students to buy their tickets before Friday, when remaining seats will go on sale to the general public," said Neoma Kinney, SIU ticket manager. "Monday was a pretty good day for a rainy day, but there are still plenty of seats available."

Students can purchase tickets for 75 cents and a fee statement from 1 to 4:30 p.m. at the athletic ticket office. Students who have an SIU athletic card can pick up reserve seats for no extra charge.

"We tried to be as fair as we could to the students," said athletic director and head football coach Doug Weaver. "I just hope students take advantage of this plan by picking up their tickets before Friday."

"We tried to give the students the best deal possible," said Weaver, "but I'm worried that the students will not take advantage of this deal because they're used to picking up a ticket on the day of the game."

Only 3,200 seats are available for this year's games.

Kansas dashes harriers' hopes for .500

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

A team-wide dash to the finish line sewed up a relatively easy 23-36 cross country win for Kansas over hosting SIU Saturday.

The Jayhawks, in control throughout a close race, wrapped up a convincing win when all of their top runners sprinted down the stretch and left SIU behind, with a 2-3 record. Juniors Tom Koppes and Bill Lundberg, Kansas's season-long 1-2 punch, wore down Salukis Jerry George and John St. John in the straightaway to finish 1-2.

Koppe's winning time was 24:59.8, with Lundberg close behind in 25:03. George and St. John, just a couple of seconds back most of the way, finished in 25:13 and 25:16, respectively.

"I would rather have the runners move up further and not have so much sprint left," Kansas Coach Bob Timmons remarked. "When you realize a guy has a lot more left, it makes you wonder if he put out completely."

"Koppes, Lundberg and Tobin ran real good races," Hartzog complimented. "It was a very good race, and I'm pleased with three of our guys."

In addition to George and St. John, that would include freshman Bill Britten, a sixth place finisher Saturday behind Tobin. Tobin was clocked in 25:20, Britten in 25:34.

Kansas actually iced the victory by claiming the seventh through tenth positions, followed by SIU's Gary Mander in 26:36. Bruce Paterson, the Salukis' fifth scorer, was 12th in 26:52.5.

Timmons was not totally satisfied, however, indicating the balance may not have been high enough to expect a win.

"Our top three guys were running well, but our team effort was hurting," he said. "Two more guys got to come in good. Lew's number one guy was hurt, and that makes a difference."

The Salukis' "number one" runner who was missing was junior Tom Fulton, suffering from a foot blister and a sore hamstring which developed from favoring his foot.

"We needed Fulton—there are no two ways about it," Hartzog said. "I don't know when we'll have him back."

While Fulton's injury was a key factor, the times of the SIU runners were slower than in earlier races this year. Even if Fulton had won the race, if the other positions had remained the same, Kansas would have won 28-29.

"I was surprised that the race wasn't run a bit faster," Hartzog mused. "However, we ran a competitive race with the Kansas kids, and they just ran off and left us at the end. A race is an individual thing, not a time thing, so you have to look at it that way."

The harriers will now have a much-needed week off, before the Illinois Intercollegiate Oct. 26. Some mended injuries and cooler weather could produce an improved SIU performance by then.

Besides Fulton on the sidelines, the Salukis have freshman Paul Craig nursing a sore back. Craig started Saturday's run, but was forced out by pain after about one-and-a-half miles.

"We've been keying toward that meet," said Hartzog. "I hope we're ready."
